

French and German military cemetery (1914)

Attribution : (X. Al Charif)

Useful information

Category : Discovery and recreation

Rating : No rating

Description

It is located on the right side of the road from Bertrix to Ochamps. On August 22 1914, a bloody battle took place in the wood of Ochamps, during which the 17th Corps of the 7th French Army got crushed by the German soldiers who also lost a lot of soldiers. It is located on the right side of the road from Bertrix to Ochamps. On August 22 1914, a bloody battle took place in the wood of Ochamps, during which the 17th Corps of the 7th French Army got crushed by the German soldiers who also lost a lot of soldiers. The bodies of these victims were buried on the very place of the battle. Currently, only the French soldiers still rest there. The German ones got away in Germany after the Second World War

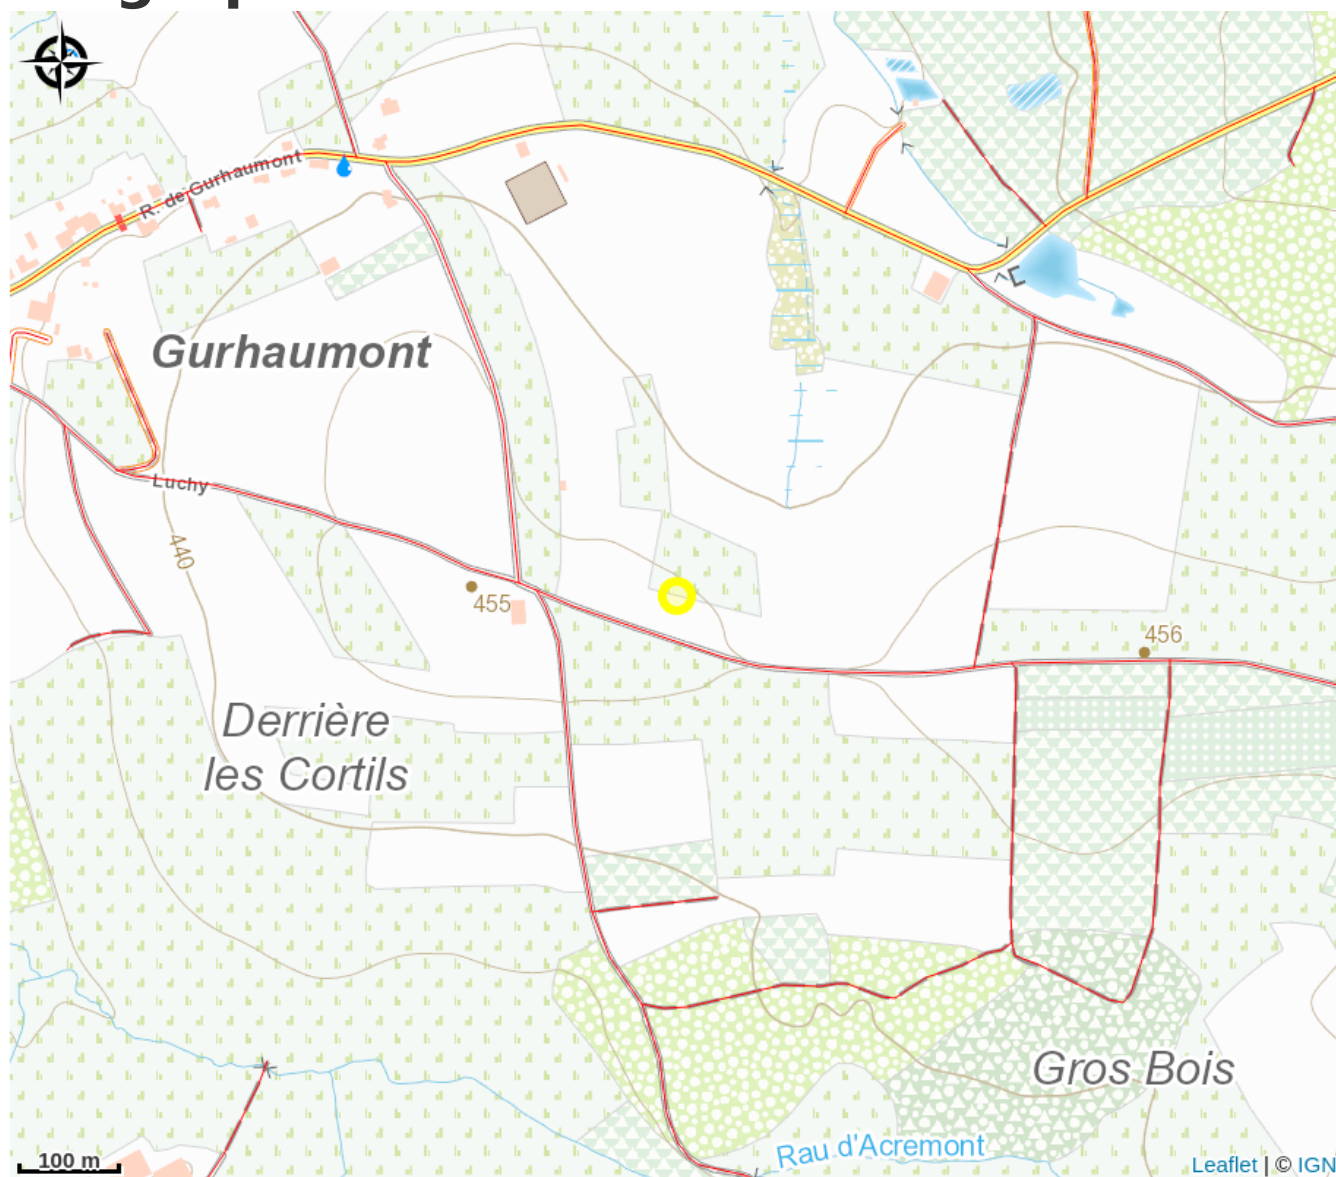

Discovery categories

Built heritage, Remembrance tourism (military heritage,...).

Facilities

Geographical location

All useful information

Contact

6880 - Luchy