This route takes you through a variety of landscapes with wide open views. Right from the start, you ride through the arboretum, where a rich diversity of tree species creates a special atmosphere. The trail continues past rural villages nestled in gently rolling hills, where hedgerows and open fields form a lively patchwork.

The circuit is 23 km long and starts in the centre of Bertrix. It is fairly easy, but requires a bike suited for mixed terrain: the route combines quiet asphalt roads with stretches of unpaved tracks. A city bike is not recommended, but an all-terrain bike makes the ride very enjoyable.

Along the way, you can take a pleasant picnic break in the peaceful village of Orgeo, where a designated picnic spot awaits. If you prefer a sit-down meal or drink, Bertrix offers several places to eat and relax.

Don't forget to pick up the free cycling leaflet from the tourist offices for more background information and tips about this green corner of the Ardennes.
